Climate Solutions

Permaculture is a global movement that calls for a cultural shift not only around how we feed ourselves (agriculture) but also our housing, transportation, economy, social organization, education, energy, health and the way we understand our relationship to the world around us – i.e., spirituality.

Rev. Ron Berezan will introduce this global movement drawing on examples from his work in Canada and Cuba and will share a vision of how permaculture informed the Sycamore Commons project at his home parish in Powell River.

Rev. Ron Berezan is an organic farmer, permaculture teacher and community food security consultant living on the Tla'amin traditional territory/Powell River. He is a Deacon at St. David and St. Paul's Anglican church where he developed the Sycamore Commons Community Permaculture project with a group of community members.
